

Selkirk Tangiers Heli Skiing Receives Recognition from WorkSafeBC and The Canadian Cancer Society

For Immediate Release:

Revelstoke, BC – Selkirk Tangiers Heli Skiing has been recognized for making large strides in occupational health and safety this year. The company has been awarded a certificate of recognition (COR) from WorkSafeBC as well as the Extra Mile Award from The Canadian Cancer Society.

The COR certificate is part of a partner program encouraging employers to go beyond the current legal requirements for occupational health and safety in the workplace.

Eriks Suchovs, General Manager for Selkirk Tangiers Heli Skiing, accepted the certificate at the HeliCat Canada spring meeting at the Penticton Convention Centre last week.

“This certificate acknowledges that we've achieved very high standards in health and safety,” said Suchovs. “We're looking forward to maintaining and exceeding these standards in the years to come.”

Selkirk Tangiers worked in partnership with go2HR, an organization geared towards assisting the tourism and hospitality industries in becoming leaders in health and safety best practices.

“We congratulate Selkirk Tangiers for being the first company in the HeliCat sector to become certified,” said Arlene Keis, go2HR’s CEO. “By achieving this certification, Selkirk Tangiers is leading the way in the industry.”

Selkirk Tangiers was also one of 12 businesses recognized by The Canadian Cancer Society for their commitment to creating healthy workplaces and promoting Healthy Workplaces Extra Mile Awards employee health. The award was handed out at the TELUS Garden in Vancouver on April 4, 2017.
